Helen of Troy

I think it is hilarious how the lustful Deiphobus succumbs to Gelanor's treachery with his plants to make him permanently impotent; thus making a mockery of his marriage to Helen. From the very beginning, deception plagued Paris and Helen's union from Helen leaving Menelaus for Paris, to Paris leaving Oenone for Helen to Paris not telling Helen that she was the prize for choosing Aphrodite thus stacking the cards against her. My only criticism was that she described certain characters by hair color.
