Inventing Film Studies — Cineaste Magazine

Rhetoric about suggestion, imitation, and crowd behavior was closely tied to anxieties about the governance of mass publics, forming one part of the invention of the new epistemological and, in turn, institutional practices to govern individuals and populations flourishing in late-nineteenth-century modernity. The Society of Cinematologists SOC , set up in 1959, changed its name to the Society for Cinema Studies SCS in 1968; then, in 2003, it changed its name once again to the Society for Cinema and Media Studies SCMS. Far from viewing cinema with suspicion, conservative American institutions like Harvard actually welcomed film into the Ivory Tower.
