History of Westminster

Henry was the first modern king of England. Two were largely guided by Plantagenet interests, in 1381—2 and 1386—7, respectively under the earl of Cambridge and the duke of Lancaster. These were cases in which the petty collectors swore before the commissioners that at the time they first received their copies of the assessment certificates certain subsidymen had no property in the ward from which the tax could be recovered by distress.

Antiquities

Thirty-one of these 120 people and the 6 city companies were actually assessed twice in London itself.
