The Third Theatre by Brustein, Robert

The Third Theatre lives on the fringe, often outside or on the outskirts of the centres and capitals of culture. Despite their geographical and historical specificity, Third Cinema films do not conform to any one aesthetic strategy but instead employ whatever formal techniques—mainstream or avant-garde—that suit the subject at hand. However, above and beyond the exchange of techniques, scenographies, and aesthetic intentions, the theatre bears itself, manifests its presence to the world, and becomes a living, breathing social fabric.
