

Recommendations for government joint action - executive summary

International Study of On-line Access to Government Information and Services in Canada - Free and Secure Trade

 www.oxfam.org.uk/policyandpractice

WRITING AN EXECUTIVE SUMMARY

WHY MASTER THIS SKILL?

Many more people need to read executive summaries of reports than read either all or even part of the report. It is the most common form of communication between governments and business, between governments and the general public, between governments and the media, and between governments and the target audience, whether trade, investors, researchers or professionals. A well-written executive summary can be the key to their success or failure.

WHAT SHOULD YOU WRITE?

You should write an executive summary to help your reader understand the main points of the best insights in the main report. While as usual in terms of readability and respect, you should spend more time on the executive summary than on the rest of the document, it is a surprisingly tall order at the end of months of work.

Here are some ideas on how to get it right, or at least not so wrong.

WHO SHOULD YOU TALK TO?

You should talk to the author of the main report, as well as someone with a knowledge of communications background to draft the executive summary (the author should do some desk checks and provide the draft). A final part of writing the executive summary is to make sure that the reader has the right information to make a decision. This means more likely to avoid jargon and specialised vocabulary, and they do not have the report to refer to. If the reader does not have the report, they will not be able to make a decision. So, if the reader does not have the report, get a good night's sleep and perhaps spend a day working on something else to clear your head.

The first paragraph should be a summary of the executive summary – consider getting and keeping the reader interested in the executive summary by starting with a short, interesting sentence. If the summary is a single paragraph – for example, if it is one sentence taken from the report – then no introduction is needed.

That's what will help people reading.

Now establish your donor brief: why should people trust your organization/author on this topic?

RESEARCH GUIDELINES

Description: -

- Hobbies/Crafts

Crafts & Hobbies

General

Papacy

Eybel, Joseph Valentin, -- 1741-1805.

Pehem, Joseph Johann Nepomuk, -- 1741-1799.

Public records -- Canada -- Data processing.

Government information -- Electronic data processing --

Canada. Recommendations for government joint action - executive summary

-Recommendations for government joint action - executive summary

Notes: Cover title.

This edition was published in 1996

Filesize: 51.51 MB

Tags: #Downloadable #Templates

F

Due to development delays, this reporting requirement will expire before the effort is complete. These imperfections are discussed in this Report. As noted earlier, the vast majority of single-specialty hospitals a new form of competition that may benefit consumers have opened in states that do not have CON programs.

F

The terms have distinct meanings, although there is some overlap between cost shifting and cross subsidies.

Downloadable Templates

In addition, provisions of the Telecommunications Act of 1996 concerning universal service policy are designed to help lower the rates for telecommunications services available to rural providers of health care.

Executive Summary

Perspective on Physician-Related Issues Physician Joint Ventures and Multi-provider Networks. Specialty hospitals provide care for a specific specialty e. Currently, the JWGT is a government-wide entity with a focus on telemedicine that has grown to more than eight member departments and agencies.

Executive Summary

This statement does not address all potential issues that GPOs may raise. Such tradeoffs are not always required, of course. Medicaid pays for a majority of long term care in the United States.

The Uninsured Approximately 15 percent of the population, or 44 millions Americans, lacked health insurance at some point during 2002.. .

Executive Summary

Recommendation 2: States should decrease barriers to entry into provider markets. In 1997, Congress enacted Medicare + Choice M+C. In addition, while development will continue through 2026, reports on Block 4 that the program submits to Congress are slated to end in 2023.

EXECUTIVE SUMMARY

Mutual Recognition Mutual recognition is a system in which the licensing authorities voluntarily enter into an agreement to legally accept the policies and processes licensure of a licensee's home state. Recommendation 4: Governments should not enact legislation to permit independent physicians to bargain collectively. The Hearings broadly examined the state of the health care marketplace and the role of competition, antitrust, and consumer protection in satisfying the preferences of Americans for high-quality, cost-effective health care.

Related Books

- Kenya checklist of fungi & bacteria on plants and other substrates
- Freedom of simplicity
- Ying Han shui chan ci hui
- Indecente deseo - Escuela de Formación de Líderes Mujeres : metodología
- Zernovedenie - laboratoryne zaniatiiia