Arab Spring

Instead, they expressed increasing apprehension that popular nonviolent movement-based changes lead, in fact, to violence, civil wars, violent extremism, and the reemergence of authoritarianism.

Golan Druze resistance to Israeli forced citizenship, 1981

Subscribe for updates of the reader and you will be first who will be in touch with all renewals. They point to the American military presence during the Gulf War, the continued presence of troops in Saudi Arabia the birthplace of Islam, and the use by Israel of American-made weapons against the Palestinians.

The Enduring Struggle to Remake the Middle East. The Arab Uprisings Never Ended. : geopolitics

Beginning in 2006, Egypt experienced the worst wave of anti-Islamist repression since the 1960s, while Jordan, long considered one of the more open, progressive Arab states, gradually descended into full-blown authoritarianism. The fact that dictators once again sit on the thrones of the Middle East is far from evidence that the uprisings failed. Subsequently, the size of the population of political prisoners and the severity of the conditions they face is a good bellwether of the overall state of political, personal, and civic freedoms—human rights in general—in a given country.

Global Connections . Politics

And those who assured us that Arab autocracies would last for decades, if not longer, were wrong. Research shows that military interventions and , while violently-driven political transitions that a country will relapse into civil war within the next 10 years to 42%, versus 28% for transitions driven by nonviolent movements.

Arab revolutions and the power of nonviolent action

But on the day in early April 1983 that the Druze were led to believe the pressure would end, 15,000 IDF troops stormed in and occupied villages.

ICNC

A breakaway group made movements towards rapprochement with Abdullah Ensour's government, having founded a charitable organization and to the association's multimillion financial assets. While remaining a mainly Shia organization, its rhetoric is national Lebanese and pro-Arab generally.
