

Attitudes toward violence : the interaction of TV exposure, family attitudes and social class

Dept. of Communication, Michigan State University - Chapter 8: Social Learning Theories

| Table 4-2. Proposed protective factors, evidence of buffering effect, and outcome affected, by domain |   |
|---|---|
| Domain  | Proposed Protective Factor  |
| Individual  | Intolerant attitude toward devianceHigh IQBeing femalePositive social orientationPerceived sanctions for transgressions |
| Family  | Warm, supportive relationships with parents   |

Description: -

- Violence on television.

Violence -- Research -- United States. Attitudes toward violence : the interaction of TV exposure, family attitudes and social class

- Information circular (United States. Bureau of Mines) -- 9189

Michigan. State University, East Lansing. Dept. of Communication. Project VIM [i.e., Violence in the media] research reports -- no.

2. Attitudes toward violence : the interaction of TV exposure, family attitudes and social class

Notes: Bibliography : l. 23-24.

This edition was published in 1970

Filesize: 29.43 MB

Tags: #Does #Television #Exposure #Affect #Emerging #Adults' #Attitudes #and #Assumptions #About #Sexual #Relationships? #Correlational #and #Experimental #Confirmation

On the Consequences of Television

Both realistic violence and violence that goes unpunished increase the likelihood of aggression. These explanations of family and domestic violence range widely in scope. Means and Standard Deviations of Outcome Variables by Laboratory Media Violence Condition and Total Lifetime Violence Exposure Consistent with our hypothesis, greater total home and community violence exposure was associated with greater changes in SBP mean difference, 3.

Chapter 9: The Subculture of Violence

Beliefs about relationships in relation to television viewing, soap opera viewing, and self-monitoring. Critiques One of the major criticisms of social learning theory pertains to its principal concept that increased associations with deviant peers increases the likelihood that an individual will adopt attitudes and values favourable to criminal conduct through the mechanism of rewards and punishments. First, parents should pay attention to what programs their children are tuned into and sometimes watch them together.

Violent Video Games Change Kids to Think More Aggressively

He found that racially and economically marginalized men were more likely to participate in violence than white and middle class men were Erlanger, 1974: 285. Another purported to find a link between violent video games and racism. A Reciprocal Approach to Terrorism and Terrorist-like Behavior.

Theories of Violence

Recent research findings on aggressive and violent behavior in youth: Implications for clinical assessment and intervention. These findings demonstrate that all young adults, regardless of background, are potentially affected by media violence exposure.

Related Books

- Cardiac pacing and ICDs
- Report of the Sector Standing Committee on Administrative Services on the Fair Trading Decree \(Amend
- Close range combat wing chun
- Landscape and pastoral painters of Holland: Ruisdael, Hobbema, Cuyp, Potter.
- Dorogoi Anton Pavlovich.