"Those who maintained... That was a time when the sun was not" Job of Gis Wood, like Augustine, was a Christian
"Black Death" was the tag his enemies gave him. As the short, dark-skinned Egyptian bishop had plenty of enemies. He was exiled five times by four Roman emperors, spending 17 of the 45 years he lived in prison. He was a saint, a teacher, a writer, and a heretic. He is best known for his "Confessions," the first of the church's confessional writing, and it is Athanasius's writings that shaped the future of the church.
Challenging "orthodoxy"
"Most often the problem was his stubborn insistence that Arius, the reigning "orthodoxy" of the day, was in fact heresy."
