Working with external data in Excel 2016 for Mac

I also work quite much on Azure and sometimes on Power BI. Many mac users are not technically advanced and getting the odd windows error surfacing really freaks them out. What functionality will they lose if they move away from the plugin to the browser UI? However, the web add-ins, like other websites, are basically a web application that interacts with the Office client products via a limited application programming interface API.

We use this information in order to improve and customize your browsing experience and for analytics and metrics about our visitors both on this website and other media. However, with Parallels, Mac users can finally experience Dynamics CRM and the indispensable Power Pack in a near-native experience, along with all their other Windows applications.

Fixes or workarounds for recent issues in Excel for Mac

Explanation: The Excel Add-in relies on the Office Web JS Add-in platform and uses Azure AD for authentication. This is because the export process uses the data from the active form to retrieve this data. The horror of supporting CRM Dynamics on iMacs still continues! In my experience, Windows installs on Parallels feel faster than when I run them natively on equivalent machine specifications.
