British Guiana

This, he thought, might open Seward's eyes to his folly. It is they who, by a great speech or two, determine what shall be said and what shall be written for long after.

Notes on the sources of information about estates

The simple truth is that the Parliament Act has given to the House of Commons, or, in plain language, to the majority thereof, the power of passing any Bill whatever, provided always that the conditions of the Parliament Act, section 2, are complied with. To all these helpers I return my most sincere thanks. During the Crimea War he was special war correspondent.

A. V. Dicey: Law of the Constitution

To meet the situation, he and Mercier, the French Minister, went the next day, June 15, on an official visit to Seward with the intention of formally presenting the British Proclamation and Thouvenel's instructions to Mercier to support it.
