

Yeats - the man and the masks

Faber and Faber - Yeats the Man and the Masks

Description: -

I
There is a house with ivied walls,
And mulioned windows worn and old,
And the long dwellers in those halls
Have souls that know but sordid calls
And dote on gold.

II

In a blazing brick and plated show
Not far away a villa gleams,
And here a family few may know,
With book and pencil, viol and bow,
Lead inner lives of dreams.

III

The philosophic passers say,
'See that old mansion massed and fair,
Poetic souls therein are they:
And O that gaudy Box! Away,
You vulgar people there.'
