Neither are thought to be in situ, and are probably from the castle. This was remodelled in 1595, but the present bridge, of two unequal spans, is only partly of this date. The next certain trace of the road is near Rhuallt, about 15 kilometres to the west.

Clwyd

Owain Gwynedd repelled two attempts in the area to regain it, the first by the joint forces of Ranulf, earl of Chester and Madog ap Maredudd, prince of Powys in 1150 and the second by the forces of
